SYSTEM AND METHOD FOR TARGET-BASED COMPACT MODELING

ABSTRACT

A method and structure for a computer model of a device has a performance parameter. The performance parameter includes a first bounded range and a second bounded range. The first bounded range has performance parameter variations within a single manufacturing process, and the second bounded range has performance parameter variations of different device designs.